

POLITICAL PRISONERS DEPART.

Scene of Excitement Along the Docks Over the Incident.

F. J. Testa Arrested for Assaulting an Officer—Jesse Kane Protests Against Her Brothers Leaving—Etc.

There was weeping and wailing on the Kinau and Claudine wharves yesterday afternoon. Several hours before the Kinau sailed natives—men, women and children—wended their way thither. The majority of them congregated to catch a glimpse of and bid adieu to the thirty-five native political prisoners who were sent off on the vessel to Hawaii, where they will do road duty until further orders.

A platoon of police, under command of Captain Parker, preceded the arrival of the convicts. There was considerable excitement, eager expectation and more curiosity over the event. The arrival at the wharf of the prisoners in their natty striped suits was the signal for an outburst of feeling on the part of those near and dear to them. Women wailed, men shouted, children bawled, dogs barked, and altogether the scene was quite affecting.

W. C. Lane, Patrick Lane and John Wise were among the prisoners. John Lane was scheduled to leave with the party, but owing to his having been attacked during the morning with German or some other kind of measles, he was left behind.

The crowd remained on the wharves until the Kinau entered the passage, and during the time waved hats, handkerchiefs, umbrellas and what not, keeping up a continual howl.

F. J. Testa, he of obese tendencies, and who enjoys distinction as editor of a native paper, the owner of a stubborn disposition, and an all-round hater of haoles, was present in spirit and flesh. He was there for the purpose, no doubt, of gathering material for a caustic tirade against the Government. In fact, so eager was he to get all the news that he came in contact with the strong arm of the law—and as usual in such cases, got the worst of it.

The editor had his notebook and pencil in hand, ready to jot down anything that might be of interest to his readers.

Testa insisted that it was his duty to block up the passageway on the wharf reserved for the prisoners to march through. A policeman thought differently and warned him to desist, gently nudging his avoirdupois frame. This enraged the journalist and he began to shout and yell. The policeman to such an extent forgot his duty to his fellow man, and struck the officer a stinging blow on the chest, coupled with an epithet not usually found in print in secular newspapers. The policeman expostulated with his weighty opponent, and finally forced the "mighty man of Gaul" aside. The matter was reported to Captain Parker, who immediately ordered Testa arrested and taken to the city jail, where a charge of assault was entered against him. Later, after the show was over, the would-be knocker-out of limbs of the law was released on $500 bonds furnished by C. B. Maile and Mauiawa.

During yesterday morning Mrs. Jessie Kane, sister of the Lane boys, called on Marshal Hitchcock and protested against the sending of her brothers off the island. She would have the Marshal to know she was a lady, and that some respect should be shown her wishes in the matter. The Marshal replied in a matter-of-fact manner to the remark that he hoped she was a lady.

COPYRIGHT 1894 PROF. J. G. LEONARD

This Symbol was in vogue by the Ancients Six Thousand Years before the Christian era.

Public opinion is the supreme tribunal—the court of last resort, before which all men must stand on final appeal. This tribunal is vigilant, exacting, merciless. It at once punishes each not in the spirit of the braggart, but modestly, confident of the merit of my cause and the unimpeachable character of my witnesses.

Conceding I admit that the nature of my propositions on which I predicate my right in equity to a favorable verdict, are so extraneous as to excite an incredulity that can only be removed by indisputable testimony, and to invite criticism so exacting that to be turned to favorable account leaves me no alternative, but to rest my plea on the sure foundation of overwhelming evidence.

The power that I possess is to me as much beyond the province of clear explanation as it is mysterious and incomprehensible to my patrons. Whether it is spiritual, devinatory, or psychic, I leave wholly to those who experience and witness its amazing manifestations.

Whatever it is, it is my holy creed, and should I prostitute the strange gift to the uses of the mountebank, the act would be baser than the vilest profanation. In its application to the secret affairs and hopes of those who choose to consult me, my pretensions are put to the severest tests conceivable, and both my duty to myself and the esteem in which I hold myself as an honest man are vitally involved. The efficiency of the charlatan would be rebuffed in an attempt to lay bare the incidents of a past life or to unfold with the daring hand of prescience the untold volume of the waiting future.

I approach, therefore, my task, involving revelations of the present and future of my patrons, awed and humbled by the strange power that is incomprehensibly mine; and the feeling that no punishment commensurate with the enormity of my crime could be devised for its conscienceless abuse.

My witnesses are those who have visited me at my Cottage on Richard, street, adjoining the Hawaiian Hotel since my arrival at Honolulu. The same regard for their feelings that shall control me in my relations with those who will follow them, prevents the mention of names, but, summoned as I feel myself before the bar of public opinion, I am assured beyond the peradventure of doubt, that the most careful inquiry will develop that they are each and every one my eloquent witnesses when my pretensions, surging, though they may be, are placed under the torchlight of investigation.

My answers to questions involving affairs of the heart, of business, of domestic life, of loved ones, absent or present, upon whom the heavy hand of affliction has fallen, and of all the emotions of love, of hope, of fears that rise and fall in the human heart and that stamp their impress on human destiny are not a whit more startling than the medium through which I am enabled to divine and answer the unspoken questions themselves. I have but to add, without boast I hope, that if you will visit my parlors and the consultation is not satisfactory in every particular, no fee will be accepted. I will drive the doubt from your mind and slay skepticism at first glance and you will join the growing army of my honorable and unimpeachable witnesses in this community, which is now arrayed to give voluntary testimony to the truth and extraordinary character of my claims on your regard and your confidence.

Sincerely Yours,
PROF. J. G. LEONARD.

Remember Professor Leonard will receive callers only until Wednesday, March 27th, opposite Central Union Church and at his Cottage, No. 1000, adjoining Hawaiian Hotel. Consultations strictly private and confidential. No appointments; first come, first served. Office hours from 10 A. M. to 8 P. M.

Note That the War

Is over, and it is the duty of every citizen to support the existing form of government. Although things may not move with the cordiality that would insure an everlasting peace, still they may be allowed to subside into that indifference without animosity, that would allow either party to work out their best interests.

All things considered it may be for the best, but time, the only arbitrator in such cases, must alone decide that. J. T. STEWART is a plumber and will do your work in a shape and at figures that will give satisfaction.
